DEBATE WOMAN'S COLLEGE

in The Times-Dispatch which seemed to class all those opposed to the pro-based co-ordinate college in connection with the university as immical to the interests of that institution.

Nothing is farther from my thought. We than any times of emmits, or lack of loyalty to the dear old university which it should be the mide of every. Virginian to support liberally and in maintain always as the type of what struction in letters and in science. The movement is general throughout! the country to develop in the public schools, beginning with the primary schools, beginning with the primary grades and extending through the whole system, instruction in agriculture, manual training and the domestic arts. This is in its infancy, but with its greater and more perfect growth untold benefits will come in the way of upliff to the producing classes, and these benefits will be felt narticularly throughout the country districts.

The United Doctors

"It is impossible for me to praise the work of THE UNITED DOC-TORS too highly," said Mrs. Allen, "I am as happy as I can possibly be. My daughter has been suffer-ing with her eyes all her life, and now, at the age of fourteen, she has been relieved of her eye trou-bles and the usual embarrassment that all sufferers from poor eyesight know."

that all sufferers from poor eyesight know."

Mrs. Allen was formerly Mrs. Peacock. Gladys, a very pretty girl, well grown for her years, had to be stopped from school on account of her eyesight.

"Gladys has been unable to go to school for about two years, but I hope to start her again in a few weeks," said Mrs. Allen. "When I first brought her to the UNITED DOCTORS it was necessary for her to hold a paper very close to her eyes to be able to see at all, and even then it was difficult. Now she can see much better, and is entirely relieved of her suffering, and the doctor has not prescribed glasses as yet. I had carried her to other specialists without success, and one refused to take my money after working on her for quite a while, saying he could do her no good."

Hundreds of testimonials have been published in Richmond newspapers attesting the remarkable cures made by THE UNITED DOCTORS, and the above is only one of many that are cheerfully given daily by satisfied patients.

Before taking treatment Miss Peacock suffered constantly with her eyes. Now she is able to read and write, and her eyes are as near perfect as buman skill and science can make them.
